Jim Mangan, operator of PENN-JERSEY COLOR COMPUTER CLUB'S BBS "CoCo DEN" and Club electronic whiz Jerry Behler at keyboard, work on updating the Colorama BBS system Jim has set up in his "CoCo Den". The updated version has more enhanced features than the standard version in that it provides for separate sections or categories for message boards. According to Jerry, the updated version 3.0 of Colorama also provides for five different ways of downloading files including XMODEM. The PJ-CCC club will also have its own sections where members may check library items, membership lists and the executive committee will have its own message board. The new board will also feature a real-time clock (it's on order) and will expand to 24 hour operations, since only those persons, whose applications are approved will be allowed to leave messages, not as currently is the case with the old BBS board. The new updated version was on line for a couple of days on a test trial and still has a couple of bugs to get worked out according to SYSOP Jim Mangan. So check the board, currently on-line 1 p.m. to 1 a.m., to see when the new system becomes operational. Call 215-866-1805 for CoCo DEN.

NEXT MEETING IS THURSDAY, JULY 25
