SEPTEMBER NEWSLETTER

It is Thursday morning, September 8, 1988, QUESTION, "Do you know where your Glenside Newsletter is? If your answer was, "I don't know..." You answered correctly! With the September meeting only hours away, you are reading everything that was received for this issue. EVERYTHING!

Last month I put out a plea for some help with this publication. Help in the way of articles. And as you can or will see, EVERYONE REALLY PITCHED-IN! I said it then and I'll say it again, "This publication can not continue with ONLY ONE (very busy) PERSON DOING ALL THE WORK..." It just is no longer possible for me to take this newsletter from start to finish each and every month. I NEED HELP! Help in the way of submitted articles from someone other then myself. PLEASE take heed with these words. "I NEED HELP!"

September is upon us like a ton of forty degree mornings and early sunsets. It is hard to except that the summer of '88 is in the history books already. Spetember has always been a landmark month with me. It announces the rude reality of lifes ageing process, the re-opening of yet another school year and strange as it may seem, September always reminds me of 'pulling in a boat dock!'.

While in search of puberty, each and every summer I could be found at a small lake in Maine with friends of the family. Some very historic events happened in my world during this time. I watched the Boston Red Sox play one of the longest baseball games in history - some twenty innings. I watched Neil Armstrong take that giant step for mankind and countless other NASA space launches. I saw first hand the fire of '64 that almost torched the entire Maine woodlands. I experienced for the first time the raw wonder of sunrise from Bald Mountian and a dieing doe clinging onto life just long enough to birth her baby. All of this splendor abound seems to give way in my memory to the one end of the summer task of pulling in the boat dock. This one activity was without a doubt the final curtain call of summer. On this day the weather always seemed to be cold and rainy. One could say that it was natures way of politely asking us to pack our bags and go home. I could never figure out how the lake got so cold in a few short hours. Just a day before we all were dashing in and out as if it were bath water. The crackle of that mornings fire place always had the hard sound of pending winter. The early morning air was crisp and biting as you made your way to the outhouse. Trying to figure out where summer went and noticing for the first time that you were wearing a winter sweater. It truly was the ending mark of yet another eventful summer.

Throughout the autumn months we would return to the lake to lock-up this or close-down that, but it never felt like the same place. It was as if we were intruding on the balance of nature. I guess when the boat dock is beached, nature puts out her 'no vacancy' sign till the next Memorial Day weekend...

I hope your summer was filled with fun and that the coming of winter is kind to us all. See you at the next meeting...
